

PRESIDENT'S COCKPIT

I hope everyone is using this cold, snowy, icy, wet weather to work on their building projects for the May building contest. Spring is just around the corner and flying season will be up and going again. I'm looking forward to getting the new runway under construction, so it has plenty of time to settle, grow, and thicken before the 2007 Warbird Fly-In and the 2007 winter begins.

Since we didn't get the opportunity to hold our February meeting due to snow and ice, we will go over the business that was going to be discussed in February. One topic of discussion that has been pending since our November 2006 meeting is the storage building for the field. Our storage facility committee (Steve T, David G, and Jerome J) have some information and ideas to pass to the membership on storage building options and or possibilities.

The next topic for discussion is the Andrews Air Force Base open house (Air Show). We need to take the time and compile a list of volunteers that can help out with this years air show. I already have four people who replied to my e-mail informing me they are available and want to participate. This air show only happens once a year for three days, and the Air Force has to conduct this show annually like it or not. Now could the Air Force call it quits? They could but they are not going to because they are giving back to the community. The Air Force is giving people access to an event that many may never get the opportunity to attend in a lifetime. In addition, the Air Force opens their doors to a select group of people (CCRCC) / vendors and allows them an opportunity to educate the guests about opportunities they may never have known about otherwise. The least we could do is show our support to the Air Force by being present and educating people about the RC hobby. It wouldn't be so important but the Air Force considers us to be another avenue of morale for their members. In addition, the Air Force has supported CCRCC for over 33 years and we want to continue that relationship.
